BURKETT ASSAULTED TOM LOFTUS. On June 20, in which St. Louis defeated Washington, furnished a sensation. Jess Burkett assaulting Tom Loftus, the Washington pitcher, was a great surprise. Burkett and Loftus had a words tilt at Washington on the Boston trip east. When Burkett got home he went to Loftus called on him to strike him out, to which Loftus had answered the outlaw hit him in his father's tea house. The escape has caused the loss of five lives—Jack Williams and Charles Hill, officers; William Warden, James McKinley and Jack Brown, prisoners—the latter being lynched here Thursday.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

FUNERAL OF DR. JONES

Services Were Very Large At-tended—Eloquent Tribute to the Dead.

Some time before the hour for the funeral services of Dr. H. K. Jones a large number gathered at the house while many more were kept away by the fact that they knew the building would not accommodate, nearly all who wanted to attend. The lack of sufficient room was a great disappointment to many who desired to pay a last tribute of respect to the memory of the deceased. The services were very solemn and impressive, yet plain and simple in accordance with the well known tastes of the departed one, Rev. R. O. Post, D. D., pastor of the Congregational church, of which Dr. Jones was a member, had charge, while excellent music was furnished by Misses Mary Tanner and Lucy Cuttin and Messrs. M. L. Robinson and Philip Kennedy. In all the rooms a liberal quantity of beautiful flowers were fitting tokens of respect and love.

Beginning the services Dr. Post said in brief:

We are gathered here to day to perform a last service of love in memory of one dear to many. It is not a sad occasion and the hymns used will not be such as are often used at times like these, but will be those which treat of love and beauty, the words which were the secret of his life. The resolutions will not be of the profane nature, but will be from the sanctuary of the heart. So at this morning hour on the day when for so many years the little club met in the upper room let this be like a continuation of their program there. Our first hymn will be "Loving Kindness, is no Free."

This was sung by the choir in a beautiful manner and then Dr. Post read various passages of Scripture. First he selected some verses from the first chapter of the Gospel of John, remarking:

In the beginning: commencing with the eternities, almost disdaining the temporality of this world he loved the sweet amenities of life. "And the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld His glory, the glory of the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth."

These words were often on his lips and expressed his belief and doctrine better than all.

"I am the resurrection and the life." "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father also."

These words he used many times. It was the revelation of God to him. It quickened his whole life and was a dearest treasure.

Dr. Post then offered a fervent prayer, after which Rev. A. B. Morey, D. D., read fitting resolutions by the Literary Union and trustees of the academy.

For thirty-nine years Dr. H. K. Jones has faithfully attended the Literary Union, being one of its original members. His long continued interest in the union and the union's growing interest in him gave the key to the chief characteristics of his mind, for wherever he was and whatever he did the same qualities marked the man. He was a thinker. Gifted with natural and spiritual discernment, he was ever looking into the reason of things. He always strove to reach the bottom of every subject; to discover principles and causes. He was a man who thought and kept on thinking until his thoughts ripened into convictions and then concreted them into governing principles of his life. He not only knew what he knew, but he believed what he knew and what he knew and believed he never dug up again for after investigation. He let it grow.

GOOD PATRONAGE.

The merry-go-round which has been doing business on East State street the past two weeks has been a veritable little gold mine for the owners. Of course the children have been the chief patrons and a good many children of a mature growth have also sailed round not a few times. Not all of these had little ones in charge either, but went for the fun of the thing. One man rode continuously the value of a dozen tickets and they wasn't ready to stop and bought five more, which he proceeded to use up on the spot. It most certainly is a harmless sport and fine fun for the children.

A BEREAVEMENT.

Sixteen years ago Clarence Depay brought his esteemed friend, S. C. Breckman, a gift in a small candle box. It was no less than a mite of a Maltese kitten, almost too small to leave its mother, but it fell into exceptionally good hands where it was reared as a first class feline should be with excellent manners and a due observance of the right. The animal was named Archimedes, though it was hardly heavy enough to raise the world even with a lever of the kind the famous philosopher said he could move the sphere with, but it was a

ILLINOIS COLLEGE AND WHIPPLE Academy.
Professor Ames has been asked to deliver lectures daily at the Old Salem Chapel. For the first five days his lectures will be upon rhetoric and for the last five on American literature. Professor Ames' training and experience admirably fit him for this kind of work and the lectures are doubtless of great interest to all the congregation.

Professor Sanford is to spend the summer camping at Lake McDonald. Mont. Invitations are out for the senior ball, which will take place next Tuesday even-

Old Time Tipping.

The tipping habit is had enough everywhere, and is worse in Europe than here. In the eighteenth century it was a greater evil than it is now. A writer in the Cornhill Magazine tells some stories to illustrate the old condition of things.

In Edinburgh in 1760 the Society of Clerks enacted that all servants should be forbidden to take tips and members be forbidden to give them. This example was followed by other clubs and societies. Today there is the rule in most clubs against feeling the servants.

An eccentric Irish landlord, Lord Taaffe, used to attend his guests to the door, and if they offered any money to the servants who were lined up with the guests' baggage, the host would say, "If you give, give it me, for it was I that put you in the corner."

A well known waiter, while sitting at a table, announced the names of the host's servants. "For," said he, "I cannot pay them for such a good dinner, but I should like to remember them in my will."

Another eccentric gentleman, after patiently redeeming his hat, sword, cane and cloak to the very bottom of his purse, turned to the two remaining servants who were waiting obsequiously, each with a glove, and said affably: "Keep those. I will not trouble to buy them back. They are old and not worth a shilling."

Power of a Swan's Wing.

"Swans" said an official of the zoo, "have great strength of wing. It is said that with a blow of its wing a swan can break a man's leg, and I have no doubt this is so. A doctor told me one day, as we stood together by the sea lake, that one of his first cases had been of a man whose arm a swan had broken with its wing."

"The incident occurred in Arkansas, or can have a body of water where these birds abound. A huntsman was 'fire hunting' when a swan, making for the light, flew straight at his head. He put up his arm to shield his face. The bird struck him like a club. Both bones in the forearm were broken; it was a compound fracture.

"It was accidentally broken in this way a man's arm, there to be, in my opinion, no room to doubt but it could, if it desired, break with a well directed blow a man's leg."—Philadelphia Record.

What a Toad Enjoys.

There are few things more amusing than to watch a toad submitting to the operation of a back scratching. He will at first look somewhat suspiciously at the twig which is being applied toward him. But after two or three purchases does his back his manner more changes a marked change, his eyes close with an expression of infinite rapture, he plants his feet wider apart and his body swells out to nearly double its ordinary size, as if to obtain by these means more room for enjoyment.

Thus he will remain until you make some sudden movement which startles him, or until he has had as much pleasure as he wants, when with a puff of regretful delight, he will reduce himself to his usual dimensions and hop away, bent once more on the pleasure of the chase.

A Famous Emerald.

The emerald is mentioned by St. John in his Apocalypse. An emerald of inestimable value ornamented the bezel of the ring of Polyesters, king of Samaria. Those who were fortunate to get it knew it was a fortune, determined to put his luck to a severe test. He threw the ring into the sea. The next day he found it.

The record of that day's sport still remains unbroken. His majesty caught a fine fish, and in the inside of the fish he found his ring. That happened in the year 230 of the foundation of Rome, and the ring, considered as a talisman, was placed among the royal treasures of the Temple of Concord.

"Very well," said the general, "you may take pictures and shovels and help repair the roads. You may find the missing mouthpieces while you are working." It is unnecessary to state that the band played soon after.

Through the Cracks.

When the celebrated divine, Edward Irving, was on the preaching tour in Scotland, a number of dedicated persons went to hear him. When they left the hall one said to the other: "Well, Willie, what do you think?" "Oh," said the other contemptuously, "the man's cracked!"

The first speaker laid a quiet hand on his shoulder.

"Will," said he, "you'll often see a light through a crack."

THE SOUP PLATE.

A Seventeenth Century Cockle-Shell Why It Was Invented.

A valet of Louis XIV. published a cookbook in 1655 in which he gives as follows the reason for the invention of the hollow soup plate:

The plates of the guests will be hollow in order that they may help themselves to as much soup as they may desire without getting oil and salt it spoonfully because of the disgust they may have for one another on seeing the spoon go from the mouth to the tureen.

Guests, it will be seen, used their own spoons to fill their plates, the large spoon to be used for serving the soup not being invented till some time later.

Even in older years after the invention of the soup plate (1740) a work of art in itself, the dishes were so placed on the table that every one could reach them with his spoon and that if the soup was served in a dish (tureen) every one should help himself with his own spoon without seeming to be in a hurry. A work on manners that appeared just before the French revolution deemed it best to advise its readers that it was impolite to pass the spoon back and forth between the mouth and the tureen.

Little by little the engraving influence of the hot bath gradually sapped away the vitality of the Roman soldier until the more hardy men of the north found them very easy foes to conquer.—Medical Talk.

Pins For Descriptive Titles.

Setting aside the dross not to be counted as literature, the naming of a book that is worthy of a name is a master of real moment. Two methods seem to have been followed—that of using the name of a leading character, as "Jane Eyre" and "Rob Roy"; the other that of giving some hint of the nature of the book, as in "Vanity Fair" and "The Cloister and the Hearth".

The first method has no justification. What we plead for is that a title shall contain the soul or the keynote of the book. Then the author and reader start on fair terms. Jane Austen, a consummate artist, understood this well, as in "Pride and Prejudice"; but forsaking her advantage in "Emma"—a better book and susceptible to as telling a title. It is difficult to estimate what would have been the loss to literature if "The Scarlet Letter" had been labeled "Hester Prym".

"The Reader" is a book by a Arkansan, or can have a body of water where these birds abound. A huntsman was "fire hunting" when a swan, making for the light, flew straight at his head. He put up his arm to shield his face. The bird struck him like a club. Both bones in the forearm were broken; it was a compound fracture.

"It was accidentally broken in this way a man's arm, there to be, in my opinion, no room to doubt but it could, if it desired, break with a well directed blow a man's leg."—Philadelphia Record.

Weighting a Field of Turnips.

The English farmer makes use of mathematics in his work, says a London paper. Suppose, for example, that wished to know the weight of his turnip crop while it is still in the ground. This requires a simple calculation.

It is the custom in England to plant turnips in ridges twenty-eight inches apart; this makes ninety ridges to the acre. The farmer selects a row where the crop seems to average the turnips in a measured yard. He plants his feet wider apart and his body swells out to nearly double its ordinary size, as if to obtain by these means more room for enjoyment.

Thus he will remain until you make some sudden movement which startles him, or until he has had as much pleasure as he wants, when with a puff of regretful delight, he will reduce himself to his usual dimensions and hop away, bent once more on the pleasure of the chase.

A Famous Emerald.

The emerald is mentioned by St. John in his Apocalypse. An emerald of inestimable value ornamented the bezel of the ring of Polyesters, king of Samaria. The Band Played.

General Custer believed in having martial music on all possible occasions. He would have the band out at 5 o'clock in the morning and the last thing in the evening. One day when a regiment had just come into camp General Custer ordered the band out. The men were tired and reported that they had lost the mouthpieces of their instruments.

"Very well," said the general, "you may take pictures and shovels and help repair the roads. You may find the missing mouthpieces while you are working." It is unnecessary to state that the band played soon after.

Through the Cracks.

When the celebrated divine, Edward Irving, was on the preaching tour in Scotland, a number of dedicated persons went to hear him. When they left the hall one said to the other: "Well, Willie, what do you think?" "Oh," said the other contemptuously, "the man's cracked!"

A BEREAVEMENT.

Sixteen years ago Clarence Depew brought his esteemed friend, S. C. Brockman, a gift in a small candy box. It was no less than a mite of a Maltese kitten, almost too small to leave its mother, but it fell into exceptionally good hands, where it was reared as a first class feline should be with excellent manners and a due observance of the right. The animal was named Archimedes, though it was hardly large enough to raise the world even with a layer of the kind the famous philosopher said he could move the sphere with, had he been a model cat. Like a sensible animal of good taste it conceived a strong liking for its master and would go out to meet him on his return from the store and Saturday nights it was especially discontented and would pine and fret around for the much desired hour for his return. The creature was getting along toward the age of voting, but was destined not to reach that period, for Friday night some wicked dogs found it in the street and managed to get it by the throat. The next morning the disconsolate owner found the lifeless body of his pet in the road, where its tormentors had left it and was the mourning in the household.

A BOLD DECEIVER SUSPECTED.

Last Wednesday a man called at the home of Cyrus Sanderson in Woodsom and said he was Mr. Sanderson's brother Robert, whom Mr. Sanderson had not seen for twenty-seven years. He displayed knowledge of the early days of the family and claimed to be well fixed in this world's goods with a desire to aid his brother, who was a man in moderate circumstances. He staid until Saturday and then borrowed 50 cents of his host to come to town to get a draft cashed, as he had bargained with Mrs. Lester to buy a house and lot for his brother. Visions of a new home flitted through the mind of the Sanderson family and arrangements were made in connection therewith. A long absent brother took the 6 a.m. train and said he would return on the 10 a.m., but ten came and three also, but no relative and now Mr. Sanderson begins to think that possibly the pretended brother may have been an arrant humbug, though he will not decide that way until he has given him a little more time.

The longer it goes the madder they get may truthfully be said regarding the recent ordinance passed by the city council regarding the management of the cemeteries. People, almost to a man, denounce the affair most bitterly and all express an opinion that the mayor will veto it and the result of that opinion will pass it over his head. Strange to say, we will be brought to bear all round and people will be slow to tolerate a change from a system which is paying its way to one which in the past has been an immense bill of expense.

First class Makers and Trimmers all the year around at Herman's, only good work guaranteed.

HAD LARGE ESTATE

Will of the Late Dr. Hiram K. Jones.

Various Relatives Remembered—Bulk of Property Will Finally Go to Illinois College.

The last will and testament of the late Dr. H. K. Jones was filed in the probate court Saturday afternoon. It is a lengthy document and contains the usual introductory paragraph, after which follow the bequests. Most of the property is converted into a life estate, which terminates when all the bequests have been satisfied. Miss Clara Calvert is named as the executrix without bond. The inventory of the estate will probably show property to the value of $85,000. The final disposition of the "Principal Fund" which is created for the trustees of Illinois college for "The Art of Museum" of antiquities and general history and science and in the event of such a building having already been provided the said funds are to become a part of the permanent endowment funds of the institution.

Clause I. provides for the payment of all just debts as soon as may be after death.

Clause II. appoints Clara Calvert as executrix without bond or security, and further provides that she shall be entitled to a sum of $1000 open account.

Clause III. provides that as soon as practicable after my death the executors shall be appointed to sell or dispose of any property or estate.

Clause IV. provides that in the event of my death before the time of my death, the executors shall be appointed to sell or dispose of my estate from all sources after due diligence and endeavor to obtain the highest price.

Clause V. provides that the annual expenditures authorized and provided for it shall be competent for the executors to draw upon the principal fund for a sum sufficient to defray the expenses of events beginning Monday.

Clause VI. provides that the remainder of the annual income of my estate after the deduction of the amount provided for in clause V. shall be applied annually to the principal fund named in clause VI.

Clause VII. provides that in the event of my death before the time of my death, the executors shall be appointed to sell or dispose of any property or estate.

Clause VIII. provides that as soon as practicable after my death the executors shall be appointed to sell or dispose of any property or estate.

Clause IX. provides that the principal fund shall be kept loaned at the rate of 5% per cent on the amount of the principal note of $10,000.

Clause X. provides that the principal note of $10,000 shall be paid to the Board of trustees of Illinois college.

ON THE GOLF LINKS

Ladies Had Interesting Contests Saturday—Playing for Place on Team.

The golf contest last Saturday afternoon was the most interesting the ladies of the club have had this season. There was a good field of players and a large gallery of spectators. In the approaching and putting contest Miss Charlotte Hayden won and Miss Elizabeth Robertson carried off the honors in the driving contest, making a drive of 177 yards. Next Saturday there will be a contest between the married and the unmarried women players and of course great interest will attach to this event.

FOR PLACE.

The results of play against bogey yesterday for places on the team were as follows:

Positions. Score.

1—Osborne 2 up

2—Lefford 6 down

3—Ayers 8 down

4—Luttrell 11 down

5—Husker 11 down

6—Kilten 12 down

7—Hockenbush 13 down

8—Bartender 14 down

9—Brown 14 down

10—Dunsmore 15 down

12—Doan 15 down

13—Hopkins 16 down

14—Phelps 16 down

15—Hayden 16 down

16—Byrns 16 down

Each of the above must yet play eighteen holes against bogey before net score.
